STUDENTS
WELCOME GUIDE

Dear exchange students,

If you are reading these lines, that means you left your home and travelled to a foreign country; you decided to study at a university which belongs to an international network of universities that welcome international students. It is the best thing a student can do to expand his/her worldview and gain new experiences. In Europe, there is a tradition of exchange in many forms. Yet during the Corona pandemic, all the things that used to be taken for granted, including studying, travelling and student exchange, were no longer the same due to the lockdown. We can now see the damage inflicted on the physical and mental health of people, and are striving to get back to what used to be normal in the past. So we are really pleased to be able to welcome you this academic year at our university in person.

Welcome to the Faculty of Arts in Ljubljana! This is the largest and oldest faculty of the University of Ljubljana which, today, ranks among the top 3% of the universities in the world. The University of Ljubljana was established in 1919 and the Faculty of Arts is one of its founding members. With its 21 departments, the faculty covers 31 fields of science, making it the leading Slovene faculty in the humanities and social sciences, renowned in particular for its language and translation departments. You will be studying with almost 5,000 students currently enrolled and can choose courses from 34 programmes at the BA level and 42 programmes at the MA level. Classes are offered in English and several other languages, while there is also a course of Slovene tailored specifically for the Erasmus students. There is so much for you to discover!

The friendly and welcoming staff at the Foreign Office with student tutors assigned to foreign students will help you to overcome the challenges posed by the language and the new cultural environment. During your stay in Slovenia, we hope you gain a new cultural experience and learn some Slovene. With its 300,000 inhabitants, Ljubljana is a small, yet attractive and friendly capital with a lively student life that offers a plethora of academic, cultural and sports events and activities.

Enjoy your stay in Slovenia, go and visit the country, get to know your fellow students – you never know, the Slovene experience might be a springboard for your future business network in the increasingly global world! Seeing your own reflection in the culture of the others will help you to see your true self.

Wishing you all the best,

Mojca Schlamberger Brezar
Dean, Faculty of Arts,
University of Ljubljana

ABOUT THE FACULTY

The early beginnings of the studies now continued at the Faculty of Arts (Filozofska fakulteta) go back to 1597, when a Jesuit college was founded in Ljubljana. Since that time, in Slovene lands there has been continuous teaching in one form or another of the basic humanities. In 1848, demands for a Slovene university began to appear and in February 1898 these were historically articulated in the Carniolan Provincial Assembly.

The desire for a Slovene university was finally realised after World War I, with the adoption of a law in July 1919. The University of Ljubljana consisted of faculties of arts, theology, law, technology and an incomplete faculty of medicine. The Faculty of Arts began its uninterrupted activities in the winter semester of 1919/20 with 245 students. Thus the first lecture, given by the dean Prof. Dr. Fran Ramovš, in Slovene historical grammar, took place at 9 am on Wednesday, 3 December 1919. In the academic year 2019/20 the Faculty of Arts solemnly celebrated its 100th anniversary.

Today the Faculty of Arts, considering the number of disciplines, study programmes and staff, is by far the largest university unit in Slovenia, as well as one of the largest considering the number of students. It has 21 departments, in which more than 30 disciplines can be studied and, with the possibility of combining subjects. Around 700 teaching staff offers students high quality education by keeping abreast of the latest ideas and developments in their academic fields. To ensure the smooth operation of the Faculty there are a around 170 specialist support and administrative staff.

The mission of the Faculty of Arts includes the uncovering of new scientific and academic knowledge and integrating this into the study process, so as to attain the level of quality required for the Faculty's creative presence in the international higher education area. To this end it also organises the international exchange of knowledge, congresses, conferences and academic gatherings, as well as inviting eminent domestic and foreign guests whose lectures contribute to general Slovene public awareness.

This is why the Faculty of Arts, having developed an exceptional network of international links in order to foster the academic mobility of both teachers and students, endeavours to be among the best education and research institutions in the wider international environment.

“An autonomous society, a truly democratic society, is a society which questions everything that is pre-given.”

WHY STUDY AT THE FACULTY OF ARTS?

The Faculty of Arts has a long, well-established tradition of excellence in teaching and research, and attracts students from all parts of Slovenia, as well as from neighbouring countries. Degree programmes at the Faculty can consist either of a single subject or of two subjects combined. For subjects that are taught at primary and secondary school, students can select a teaching option in order to become qualified teachers. The two subject programmes can be freely combined both within the Faculty and, in the case of certain programmes, with other institutions of the University of Ljubljana. The range of study options is thus extremely rich and varied. At the postgraduate level, there are two-year master's and three-year doctoral programmes.

Graduate students at various departments are organised into alumni clubs and associations which issue their own publications, such as departmental newspapers, and organise excursions, student parties and picnics. Through the help and at the incentive of departmental teachers, there are also very active theatre groups and choirs or musical groups. Since the academic year 2007/2008, every first-year student is assigned a personal tutor.

The variety of academic disciplines at the Faculty and the presence of different sources of knowledge at the same location facilitate and encourage an interdisciplinary approach both in the transfer of knowledge as well as in the study experience itself.

Whatever you choose to study at the Faculty of Arts, the time you spend there will help you preserve the basic human values, dignity and a creative attitude to life. Not only the external life studied in laboratories and on savannas, in field work and on excursions – not that there is any shortage of these at the faculty, which makes studying there even more interesting – but your inner life and your attitude to everything that influences it. The Faculty of Arts is aimed at people who would rather use a tool than become one.

THE BOLOGNA PROCESS AT THE FACULTY OF ARTS

Over the last ten years thorough curricular changes have been effected. They were carried out to ensure an allocation of credits commensurate with the student's workload, to harmonise programmes in terms of type and courses, and to offer students wider opportunities with regard to selecting study modules and combining options according to their interests and needs. All study programmes are redesigned in accordance with the Bologna process principles and the Lisbon Strategy. The resulting three-cycle-structure of 3+2+3 brings the Faculty more in line with the general needs of society and of employers in particular. Students are offered a wider range of options, and all subjects are aimed both at the general development of the individual and his/her particular abilities and at improved study results. In order to ensure a higher level of individual teaching input, approaches are being revised and support systems systematically introduced. These include student and teacher tutoring, as well as e-learning. It should be emphasised that the Faculty of Arts strives to combine well-established and highly-valued academic traditions with new approaches and measures. Since the academic year 2009/2010 all the programmes of Faculty of Arts were renewed according to Bologna principles and the Lisbon Strategy.

APPLICATION AND ADMISSIONS PROCEDURES – FULL-TIME STUDIES

UNDERGRADUATE STUDY

Application and admissions procedures for enrolment in the first year of undergraduate studies at the University of Ljubljana, for all member faculties, academies and high-schools, are managed by the Higher Education Enrolment Information Service. For more information about application procedures, important deadlines and recognition of foreign secondary school certificates refer to their web page: <http://www.uni-lj.si/study>

POSTGRADUATE STUDY

Application and admissions procedures for postgraduate study programmes are managed by the Postgraduate Studies Office at the Faculty of Arts.

LANGUAGE OF INSTRUCTION AND COURSES TAUGHT IN ENGLISH

The language of instruction at the Faculty of Arts is Slovene, except in the language departments, where the language studied is also the language of instruction. We offer some courses in English, a so called “Erasmus basket”, at various departments. The offer is published on the faculty's website. There are some courses in English for exchange students at the Department of Ethnology and Cultural Anthropology. For more detailed information visit the departmental web sites.

Department of Archaeology

The undergraduate and graduate curricula cover the full span of archaeological periods, from the Palaeolithic to the Post Medieval, in South Central and South-Eastern Europe. Students are also taught various techniques of archaeological fieldwork, laboratory analysis, remote sensing, geographic information systems, archaeological theory and pale environmental studies. The programme also covers subjects from other areas of the humanities, as well as both social and natural sciences. Students graduating in archaeology are qualified to work in research, heritage management and museums.

Department of Art History

The two programmes provide extensive knowledge of the history of both Slovene and world art, while focusing on different aspects of classical and modern notions of visual arts, their interpretation and social context. The general programme equips graduates with the skills and knowledge required for research in the history of art, for work in galleries, museums, various art collections or in cultural heritage protection, while the teaching option qualifies them to teach the history of art, and for activities in different fields of cultural promotion. Both options enable graduates to work in the media, publishing and tourism.

Department of Asian Studies

The Department offers an Asian Studies programme with three possible fields of study: Sinology, Japanology and Koreanology. These fields explore the culture, history, sociology, language, way of thought and political systems of China, Japan and Korea respectively, in the light of tradition, development and current social realities. The programme equips graduates for work as translators, in research institutions, libraries and in diplomacy.

Department of Psychology

The Department offers a general, research oriented degree programme in psychology. Theoretical (cognitive, personality, developmental and social psychology) and applied (I/O, educational and clinical) disciplines are approximately equally represented in the curriculum. Training in the use of statistical and psychometric methods and the conducting of supervised empirical research is also considered important. Optional courses and seminars in the second part of the programme allow students to deepen their knowledge of the disciplines that most interest them.

Department of Sociology

The Department offers two degree programmes: sociology of culture and sociology (teaching option).

Students following the first programme concentrate on socio-cultural theory and research with an emphasis on expertise in specific cultural fields. The programme also prepares students for work in cultural management and administration, as well as in the organisation of cultural and cultural-political activities. Students taking the teaching option are trained to become high school teachers of sociology or the humanities. With their general sociological background, they can also work in other areas that require a degree in sociology.

STUDENT ORGANISATION

Students in Slovenia are well organised and represented at various levels. At the national level, the Student Organisation of Slovenia (ŠOS) concerns itself with students' rights, plays an active role in shaping education legislation, and organises a range of activities. ŠOS is made up of four entities – the Student Organisation of the University of Ljubljana (ŠOU in Ljubljana), the Student Organisation of the University of Maribor (ŠOUM), the Student Organisation of the University of Primorska (ŠOUP), and the Union of Students' Clubs (ŠKIS).

The main office of ŠOU in Ljubljana is located in Pivovarniška 6. It is there that foreign students can get all the info they need on housing, subsidized student meals, parties and other social activities, sports and much more. Visit their offices or website (<http://www.sou-lj.si/english>) for additional information. Each Faculty has its own student organisation that is part of ŠOU. In the case of the Faculty of Arts it is the Student Organisation of the Faculty of Arts (ŠOFF). ŠOFF consists of 24 members: a President, Vice-president, representatives of each Department at the Faculty (21), and a representative of the Student Council of the Faculty of Arts (ŠSFF).

The Student Council of the University of Ljubljana (ŠSUL) is the highest student representative body of the University of Ljubljana. At the faculty level, the Student Council of the Faculty of Arts has a similar function. It consists of 22 members: a representative for each of the 21 Departments as well as one post-graduate student representative. In the event of any Faculty-related problem, you can contact your Department's representative. They can be reached via e-mail or at the Student Office which ŠSFF and ŠOFF members share. To find out who your representatives are and to obtain their contact information, visit the respective websites of both student bodies: <https://ssff.ff.uni-lj.si/en> (Student Council) and <https://www.ff.uni-lj.si/fakulteta/studentska-organizacija-ff> (Student Organisation).

There are also student associations active at most Departments. These organise excursions and freshers' parties, publish student newspapers and magazines, and take care of other study-related extracurricular activities. Foreign students are welcome to join Slovene students in these associations and to attend their functions. Ask your colleagues or the Department secretary for more information about individual students associations.

You can also contact the Student Office for any additional help you might need during your stay here. You can visit your representatives during office hours or contact the Student Vice-Dean at prodekan.student@ff.uni-lj.si.

TUTORING AT THE FACULTY OF ARTS

In order to help incoming exchange students get accustomed to student life in Slovenia, they are assigned tutors. The tutors are Slovene students who help the newcomers to become accustomed to student life in Ljubljana and deal with any problems that they might have at the Faculty or individual departments. These volunteers share a common interest in meeting people from different countries, learning foreign languages and seeing student life in Ljubljana through the eyes of an exchange student. The tutoring system for exchange students was first established at the Faculty of Arts in the academic year 2006/07. Since then tutors for foreign students have gone from merely helping out their foreign colleagues to organising one day trips to different parts of Slovenia each semester, various social events at the faculty café K16, photo exhibitions and so on. If you are a foreign student and have not received any information about your tutor, please contact the International Relations Office of the Faculty of Arts, and a tutor will be assigned to you.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS OFFICE

The numerous international contracts and Inter-institutional agreements established with other universities (Erasmus+, CEEPUS, exchanges within the framework of bilateral grants, etc.) enable students to spend up to a year at an institution abroad. Exchanges with other universities are very productive and there is an increasing number of students coming from abroad to study at the Faculty of Arts. There are around 300 foreign students studying at our faculty per academic year. The International Relations Office provides administrative assistance to international exchange students and teachers both incoming and outgoing. The Office is responsible for organisation and application procedures for all exchange programmes at the Faculty.

EXCHANGE PROGRAMMES AND INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION

ERASMUS+

ERASMUS+ is the EU Programme for Education, Training, Youth and Sport for the period of 2021 – 2027. The Erasmus+ Programme aims to boost skills and employability, as well as modernising Education, Training, and Youth work. The seven year programme will provide opportunities for Europeans to study, train, gain work experience and volunteer abroad. New Erasmus will be more inclusive, more digital and greener.

The programme provides more and better opportunities to increase skills and competences of higher education students, quality in teaching and learning and is more user friendly.

The Faculty of Arts is very active in the Erasmus+ student exchange programme in the Key Action 1. Previous Erasmus – Socrates and LLP Erasmus Scheme have also been fully functional at the Faculty since the year 2000. Currently the Faculty has more than 430 signed Inter-institutional Erasmus+ Agreements, and the number is on the rise.

The Faculty is also participating in joint programmes. For more information contact the office at: magistrski.studij@ff.uni-lj.si.

In May 2007, the University of Ljubljana was awarded a certificate granting the E-Quality Label or the “Implementation and Organisation of Mobilities” within the framework of the Erasmus programme.

CEEPUS

CEEPUS is a Central European student and teacher exchange programme running since 1995. It is based on the principle of networks between the cooperating countries: Albania, Austria, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Croatia, the Czech Republic, Hungary, Kosovo, Macedonia, Moldova, Montenegro, Poland, Romania, Serbia, Slovakia and Slovenia. At the Faculty of Arts there are 19 CEEPUS Networks.

UNIT FOR SPORT EDUCATION

The unit for sports education organises regular training and courses for students every semester, offering a choice of 26 sports activities. While educational in nature, the programmes also contribute to more effective studying by providing for recreation and relaxation – a counterbalance to students' strenuous intellectual activities. Students can choose the semester, activity, time, location and teacher. Faculty teams successfully take part in inter-faculty competitions. Sport is now an elective subject for which credit points are awarded.

CENTRAL HUMANITIES LIBRARY (OHK)

The Central Humanities Library of the Faculty of Arts in Ljubljana (OHK FF) is the largest library within the University of Ljubljana and the third largest in Slovenia. It comprises 18 departmental libraries adjoining 21 departments; 13 libraries are located in the main building on Aškerčeva 2, 4 in the extension of the main building, and 2 on Zavetiška 5. OHK FF holds an extensive joint collection of over 720.000 items of library materials, 220.000 visitors a year borrow approx. 320.000 items. Each departmental library specialises in certain areas of science or arts referring to study programmes and fields of research of the department(s) they are affiliated to. Library stocks are mainly registered in the COBIB digital catalogue (Union Bibliographic/Catalogue Database).

In addition to study seats in individual libraries, there is the Common Reading Room (Room 015) available in the basement of the faculty. Outside library opening hours, items on loan can be returned into the book return boxes in front of Room 11 on the ground floor. OHK FF also offers interlibrary loan services as well as local and remote access to various electronic resources.

SCIENTIFIC & RESEARCH INSTITUTE

The Faculty of Arts Scientific & Research Institute (ZIFF), the origins of which date back to 1979, coordinates the research work carried out by teaching and research staff at the Faculty.

Continuing academic research is both the basis for and a vital component of all well conceived and successfully implemented educational work. ZIFF manages the participation of researchers in research programmes at home and abroad, as well as in public calls for applied programmes, encourages the inclusion of young researchers in research activities and helps obtain additional funding from various sources. It helps organise professional and academic gatherings and is responsible for the development of the research infrastructure.
